Hillsborough, NC -- (ReleaseWire) -- 02/24/2016 -- Dr. James Miller, head veterinarian at Durham Animal Hospital in Durham and North Churton Animal Hospital in Hillsborough, has announced the launch of a new website for clients. The website, found at <http://www.myhometownvet.com>, provides valuable information to pet owners who want to improve their pet's health. It also provides a convenient place to learn more about Dr. Miller and his animal hospitals.

Through the new site, Dr. Miller offers information about the services his facilities offer. From medical to surgical and even dental, Durham Animal Hospital and North Churton Animal Hospital offer a comprehensive list of pet healthcare services. Through the website, pet owners can also see specials the facilities are offering, like half-price initial exams for new clients or price matching on preventatives.

"With My Hometown Vet, we wanted to give our patients and new clients interested in our practice a place where they could get the information they need," said Dr. Miller. "From contact information and phone numbers to our current special offers, it's all located in one convenient place."

The website contains a blog that provides information and advice about pet health to interested pet owners who want to provide the best possible care for their animals. With the blog, Dr. Miller can provide tips and advice pertinent to seasonal issues and concerns that all pet owners face. "Our blog is really like having a vet in your living room providing advice about <http://www.pinterest.com/myhometownvet/veterinarian-durham/>">your pet's health," said Dr. Miller.

The website also shows reviews from satisfied clients who have visited Dr. Miller at one of his locations. This provides peace of mind for pet owners who are considering visiting his animal hospital for the first time.
